

I was under the impression that the FCC has certain powers to regulate the airwaves, what goes on and what doesn't. What's happening? Can any broadcaster say and do just whatever they want to? Sinclair's airing of the biased anti-Kerry documentary violates the tenets of fair play, equal access, and "the American way." You should be ashamed for either being so helpless or appearing to be so.